

DEATH OF BABE TRACED TO MILK

Infant of W. F. Broughton Dies and Another Child Is Seriously Ill.

INSPECTOR INVESTIGATES

DAIRIES FOUND TO BE FAR BELOW GOVERNMENT STANDARD.

Reports that one child had died and that another was seriously ill as a result of drinking impure milk caused Walter J. Frazier, city pure food inspector, to make a strict investigation Monday. The child whose death was reported was the four-month-old babe of W. F. Broughton at 221 North West street.

The inspector found that the milk given the little one was supplied by the Howard & Hatch dairy of Wood's Cross. He took samples and sent them at once to Herman Harms, state and city chemist. This is what Mr. Harms says of the samples:

Unfit for Humans.

"The two samples of milk submitted from Howard's dairy possess a disgusting, sickening odor, and also show considerable sediment, rendering the milk, in my opinion, totally unfit for human food."

The child of S. A. Tiger, 227 North Fifth West street, was reported very sick as a result of milk given it, and the inspector made an investigation there. He found considerable sediment in the milk bottle and hunted up a wagon from the Howard & Hatch dairy. He met the wagon in North Salt Lake coming from Wood's Cross and took samples. Then he ordered thrown out twenty-three quarts as well as forty-three quarts consigned to Howard Bros. Samples from this were sent to Mr. Harms, who reported that they contained a large amount of deleterious matter, rendering them totally unfit for human food.

The inspector also made a tour of restaurants and eating houses to ascertain what sort of milk is being served during the encampment. Samples of this were handed over to Chemist Harms last night.

James P. Shay, department commander of the G. A. R. from Oregon, was to the front with a complaint Monday. He has been put on a milk diet by his physician, and evidently drank some of the milk from the bad dairies. He said:

"This is pretty bad. Salt Lake should get busy. The stuff I have bought here for milk is not fit for use. We make the dairies keep their milk up to the standard in Oregon and seldom have trouble of this kind."

Inspector Frazier said that James Howard, sr., who supplied some of the questionable milk, had been using a brass milk pail, which might have affected the fluid.

TEXAS MAN FAVORABLY IMPRESSED BY PRISON

Primarily because of the fact that the Texas penitentiary system is now undergoing investigation at the hands of a special committee of the state legislature, Tom Flinty, jr., staff correspondent of the Galveston-Dallas News, is en route to Seattle to attend the American prison congress, and is also visiting a number of state and federal prisons. Mr. Flinty made visits to the Utah state prison yesterday and left at night for Salem, Ore.

"I was very favorably impressed with the Utah prison, and with the men in charge of its affairs," said Mr. Flinty. "The new cell building. It is escape-proof and contains the solution of at least one of the problems with which the Texas authorities are grappling. The Utah prison, however, cannot generally serve as an example for Texas, for the reason that our problems are in many respects different. For instance, Utah has only 280 convicts, whereas Texas has 3,500; the Utah prison is supported in part by legislative appropriation, and is not expected to be self-sustaining, whereas the Texas penitentiary system is expected to work out its own salvation. The authorities of the Texas system realize that there is room for improvement in several directions, and the outlook is very favorable for marked progress as a result of the present investigation."

GEORGE REYNOLDS, SECRETARY TO BRIGHAM YOUNG, IS DEAD

George Reynolds, one of the first council of seventy of the Mormon church, and prominent in many other lines of the church work, died peacefully at his home at the corner of Wall and Apricot streets, on Capitol hill, shortly after 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. General debility was given as the cause of his death. About two years ago he had a breakdown caused from overwork and from which he never fully recovered, having during the last several months been growing gradually weaker and weaker, until the end yesterday.

He was secretary to the first presidency of Brigham Young and since then has been almost constantly in the employ of the church. He was a lieutenant in the Nauvoo legion and secretary of the regiment. In 1868 he was elected by the legislative assembly of the territory as a regent of the University of Deseret, now the University of Utah, and was later re-elected by following legislative sessions. He was a prolific writer on Mormon subjects.

In 1871 he spent some months in England as editor of the "Millennial Star," and returning home wrote "The Story of the Book of Mormon" and the "Concordance of the Book of Mormon." In 1872 he was lessee and manager of the Salt Lake theatre. From 1875 to 1879 he was a member of the municipal council of Salt Lake City.

Tests Polygamy Law.

When an agreement was made for a test of the congressional law of 1862 against polygamy Mr. Reynolds was chosen to stand in the gap and was tried in the federal court, the trial lasting for seven days. He was found guilty and sentenced to one year in prison and to pay a fine of $100. The judgment was set aside by the supreme court of the territory. He was tried again, found guilty and sentenced in 1876 to two years imprisonment and fined $500. This time the supreme court sustained the judgment.

An appeal to the supreme court of the United States resulted in elimination of the hard labor clause and he was taken to the Nebraska state penitentiary at Lincoln, where he remained twenty-five days, when he was brought back to Utah to the Utah territorial penitentiary. He was released January 20, 1881, having served his full term less good conduct allowances.

He has been closely connected with Sunday school work in the Mormon church and was the oldest member of the Deseret Sunday School union, of which he has held the chief offices. He has been associate editor of the Deseret News and the Utah Territorial Enterprise. He was also a member of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Native of Britain.

Mr. Reynolds was born January 1, 1842, in Marylebone, England, and came to Utah in July, 1855. He was the husband of two wives, one of whom survives him and he leaves a large family. His children are: Mrs. Charles Martin, Miss Alice Reynolds of Provo, Mrs. Benjamin Cluff, Mexico; Mrs. Neal Hood, Salt Lake; Mrs. William Harmon, Springfield; John L. Reynolds, Harold, Sidney S. Miss May, George Carl, Willard H. and Nephi Reynolds of Salt Lake; Mrs. John Russell of Salt Lake; Mrs. Joseph F. Smith, Jr., of Salt Lake; Mrs. Josephine, Gertrude, Georgia, Polly, Rosalie, Julia Reynolds and Phillip C. Gordon, Arthur and Burford Reynolds of Salt Lake.

WILD WEST SHOW OPENS TODAY GIRL RIDERS READY FOR THE FRAY

The finishing touches were given yesterday to the preparations for the great wild west show which will begin at the state fair grounds at 2 o'clock this afternoon. The horses all arrived safely, as did the six carloads of stock. The riders got in in the morning, and through some hitch were not taken directly to the state fair grounds, as the management contemplated, upon the cars in which they came, but had to be unloaded and taken over to the grounds on a street car. It was all J. C. Leary and the Indian agent who had them in charge to restrain the braves and their squaws from breaking into a restaurant while en route and getting breakfast. Finally after it was conclusively proved to their satisfaction that a good breakfast was waiting them at the fair grounds, they were induced to board the car and go out there.

The women riders from the east arrived yesterday. Miss Lillie Nicholson, the famous rider from Fort Collins, Colo., expects to walk away with some of the money.

"I am only 19 years old," said Miss Nicholson, "when I was seen at the Collier where she is stopping, yesterday afternoon, and have only been riding since I was 16 years old. I am not, as has been alleged, an old hand in the saddle. In fact, I took up riding on the advice of my doctor for my health. I went up to Cheyenne last year to enter the contest there simply because the people around home insisted that I should do so. I have been in about twenty different races during my short career as a rider, and have had abundant opportunity to go into the game as a professional, but my folks do not like the idea. However, I did want to go to Europe this year and do some fancy riding over there. I have ridden against Mrs. Goldie St. Clair, who will be here this year. Mrs. St. Clair is from Oklahoma, and at one time belonged to the 101 Wild West Ranch show. She is a famous broncho buster as well as a great rider. In Columbus, Neb., last year I was fortunate enough to win over her. Maybe that was because I had a better string of horses; anyway, I won out. I never have been beaten except at Cheyenne last year, when Mrs. Danks took first prize, but I only had a string of straight livery horses at that time, and really did not expect to do anything when I entered the race. As far as time is concerned, I can say that I have beaten the champion relay man rider of Colorado, Harry Ganz. We both used the same string of horses, saddles and cinches. Mrs. Danks is a dandy rider and I have not got a word to say against her, but I do hope that I will win. My horses are Rainbow, Amy and Arthur."

PICKS UP SMALLPOX PATIENT ON STREET

Assistant Health Commissioner Discovers Victim Who Denies Being Ill.

"I've seen marks like those before," said Dr. S. G. Paul, assistant health physician, when Judge C. B. Diehl, who was walking along Main street with him, was called his attention to the peculiar appearance of the back of a man's neck. The man was standing near the corner of Second South.

"Come here, you," said Dr. Paul, as he tapped him on the shoulder. The man thought he was arrested and protested that he had done nothing.

Dr. Paul took him to his office and found that he had a well developed case of smallpox. The man protested that he had seen a doctor only that morning, and was told that there was nothing the matter with him. The assistant health commissioner was not in a very good humor at the tarnishing of the clean bill of health he had established for the city for the encampment week, and was calling a quarantine week, and the man home. When the officer arrived with him at the place where he had been boarding at 222 West First North street, the landlady refused to allow him in the house.

He spent the afternoon in the yard under guard while Dr. Paul arranged to reopen the isolation hospital.

In the meantime the neighbors kept the latest busy telling the health department things. The man is E. A. Kennedy, aged 21 years.

MINER TURNS ASTROLOGER

R. H. Madison Petitions Council to Grant Him Free License to Practice.

Here's a new one. R. H. Madison, whose petition is backed by Peter Hanson, city constable, and others, wants the city council to grant him a free license to practice astrology. His petition was filed with City Recorder John B. Moreton yesterday, and reads:

"R. H. Madison, your humble petitioner, and undersigned citizens of Salt Lake City, hereby ask your honorable body to grant me the privilege of a free license to practice astrology.

"As a plea or reason for asking this favor, I respectfully ask to submit that I used to follow the occupation of a miner, but age and other physical disabilities have for several years prevented me from following that or any other line of hard physical labor as a means of making a living.

"As to my qualifications as an astrologer, I can only say that I have been a student of astrology, phrenology and palmistry at spare moments for thirty years though I never attempted to practice them in public. Astrology requires a great amount of mathematical calculation and is never very profitable to a conscientious student, and I would rather follow any other employment suited to my physical condition and ability, providing such can be obtained."

The names of Peter Hanson, constable in Justice of the Peace Stanley A. Hanks' court, Frank Erath, J. W. Sanders and Henry Kramer, sr., appear on Madison's petition.

The values we're giving

is the secret of the constant crowds in our store.

No season before has seen such ruthless sacrificing of strictly seasonable clothing, furnishings, hats and children's wear.

It's because a backward season left us unusually heavily loaded with summer merchandise, and we must make unusual efforts to close them out before fall goods come.

Even now many of our fall lines are on the road
—that means sacrifice this season's stuff—you profit
—we lose—come and fit yourself out at a fraction of the usual cost—and every value is a Siegel value.

VALUATION OF SHEEP BOOSTED

Decisive Action Taken Monday by State Board of Equalization.

The state board of equalization yesterday increased the assessed valuation of sheep in a number of the counties which they have had under consideration for the past week or two.

In Platte county the increase made by the board amounts to 50 per cent. In other counties the board was more lenient, raising the valuation of sheep in the following counties but 30 per cent: Box Elder, Sanpete, Summit, Carbon, Rich and Tooele. In Emery, Juab, Iron, Millard, Utah and Wasatch counties the valuation is increased 20 per cent.

No action was taken concerning the valuation in Garfield county. The board wants some further information regarding this county before taking any decisive action.

All propositions looking toward an increase in the valuation of cattle have been withdrawn, and the assessed valuations of cattle in the various counties will remain as the county assessors have fixed them.

RECEIVER APPOINTED.

L. L. Goddard Will Collect Rents of Kershaw Property Pending Suit.

Judge T. D. Lewis of the district court yesterday appointed L. L. Goddard receiver of rents and profits from property in lot 3, block 130, plat D, Salt Lake City survey, owned by Byron S. ## FEDERAL EXPERT WILL HELP EXTERMINATE PEST

Secretary of Agriculture Names Representative to Aid in Stamping Out Alfalfa Weevil.

James Wilson, United States secretary of agriculture, has written Governor William Spry that the department will send an expert to Utah and will aid the state of Utah financially in an effort to stamp out the alfalfa weevil. The governor had written the secretary of agriculture enclosing a letter from Professor E. G. Titus of the Utah experimental station.

The secretary says that he had turned the letters over to Dr. L. O. Howard, entomologist of the department, who decided to send one of the department's best men, George L. Reeves, here to work with Dr. Titus. He adds an assurance of sympathy, and says that "it may take some time to get an understanding of the creature. You may need a little financial assistance, and Dr. Howard says that as far as we are able to help you in that way, we will be glad to do so."

He further adds an appreciation of Dr. Titus, of whom he says that Dr. Howard speaks as a very competent man.

INDIVIDUALS AS SURETIES

Search of the Records of Salt Lake County Shows Large Liability Assumed by Citizens.

Probably little thought is given by the majority of people as to how many bonds are filed during a year in the county court guaranteeing the honesty and fidelity of individuals in positions of trust.

It would surprise those who have been signing bonds for their friends to know what liabilities they have assumed and are assuming for no consideration whatever, but which liabilities are assumed simply because they are "good fellows," or dislike to refuse the request of a friend.

A search of the records of the district court of Salt Lake county shows that from June 1, 1908, to June 1, 1909, a period of one year, there were 203 fiduciary bonds filed with an aggregate liability of $32,770. Those bonds were filed by 230 administrators and executors and by seventy-three persons acting as guardians. Of this number of bonds, forty-eight were executed by surety companies with a liability of $323,560, while citizens of Salt Lake county assumed the remaining liability of $488,910; there are, therefore, about 460 persons in Salt Lake county assuming a liability of $488,910, or an average risk to each person of about $1,062. This might seriously inconvenience, if not embarrass, those who have assumed the risk, if loss should occur.

Business men throughout the country measure a man's resources by deducting from his assets his liability on bonds, and the custom is growing rapidly each year for a person appointed or elected to a position in which surety is required, to purchase his bond from a surety company, just as he would purchase his fire or life insurance from a company organized for that purpose, and thus avoid becoming obligated to his friends.
